HALLOWEEN PARADERS POSE—Witches, pirates and dogs in baby carriages were among the 1,000 paraders who helped make Mansfield's "Hunt Halloween" festival an overwhelming success last night. More than 10,000 persons watched the hour-long parade wind through the city to the accompaniment of Liberty Park band. Only a handful of the celebrators is shown here; other pictures are on Page 5. Left to right, above, are: Dolores Knackstedt, 144 Willow street, dressed as a beak-nosed witch, with broom; Joe Reynolds and Jake Worner, both of Bellville, with their carriage-borne dog, "Trixie"; Thelma Frietchen, 202 South Diamond street, carrying a parasol and bedecked in a colorful, crepe-paper dress, and Gerald Rizzo, 51 South Main street, garbed as a "ferocious pirate" and winner of the best-dressed-boy prize.—(News-Journal staff photo.)

Bowers Avenue Site Tentatively Picked For Veteran Housing

A 900 by 100 feet site facing Bowers avenue near the corner of Home avenue appeared today as the likely location for the Richland county veterans housing project.

Commissioners selected the site yesterday subject to a study of the feasibility of connecting into the Bowers avenue sewer line. They detailed the county engineer to investigate this problem at the site today and to consult with the city engineer's department, C. L. Shoup, board chairman, reported.

The site on the Bowers avenue side of the Children's Home property was selected after the commissioners found that a proposed site on the Home avenue side was unsuitable because of the small area of level ground. The site selected is level and large enough to accommodate the project, Shoup said.

First Definite Move.

Should the site be approved by the board, it would become the first definite move by the commissioners to establish the county veterans' housing project with approximately $64,000 provided by the state legislature.

Speedier action on the housing project was urged by five representatives of the Robert P. Spreng Amvet post, No. 26, at a meeting in the commissioners' office last Saturday afternoon.

Selection of a site on land already owned by the county would permit the construction of more housing units with the money, the board feels.

Although no decision has been made by the board on the type of houses or apartment units to construct, they have been investigating several types of prefabricated houses.

FUND'S OVER TOP BY $1,808

Last-Hour Receipts Bring Success For Workers in Annual Campaign.

Goal	$94,067
Raised	$95,875
Surplus	$ 1,808

Mansfield's 26th Community Fund campaign was over the top today—by $1,808.

Victory in the drive for $94,067 was announced after reports were turned in at the 9 p. m., deadline yesterday. Last-minute receipts pushed the campaign over the goal.

During late afternoon when only $505 was needed to edge the campaign over the goal, Peter DiSanze, unit chairman of the food division, brought in exactly $505 from the Liquor Permit Holders' association of the city, campaign officials reported. This contribution filled the permit holders' pledge of $850.

Another late, large gift donor was the Isaly Dairy company which put the drive well over the top. Later many smaller donations flooded the campaign office in the YMCA building.

Chairman Pleased.

Enthusiastic over the success of the drive, W. E. Slabaugh, jr., general chairman of the campaign commented:

"The attaining of this year's Community Fund goal assures the Red Feather agencies that adequate funds will be available to enable them to carry on their youth and welfare activites in a way commensurate with the needs

AWAY FOR CLEVELAND—A special air mail plane carrying a bag of souvenir air mail covers is shown rising from the municipal airport runway today as four Mansfield civic officials wave farewell. The plane is piloted by R. E. Owens of Harrington Air Service, Inc. The officials (backs to camera) are W. W. Enlow, Mansfield's service-safety director; Mayor Roy W. Vaughn; John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, and Acting Postmaster Curtis L. Ford.—(News-Journal staff photo.)

29-Minute Flight Puts Air Mail In Cleveland

A special air mail plane carrying a bag of souvenir air mail covers left the municipal airport at 10:05 a. m. today and arrived in Cleveland just 29 minutes later.

Before the take-off, a group of civic officials participated in a ceremony in observance of National Air Mail week. Present were Mayor Roy W. Vaughn, Service-Safety Director W. W. Enlow, Acting Postmaster Curtis L. Ford and John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

The special flight was sponsored by the city and the airport committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

The plane—an Ercoupe low-wing monoplane—was piloted by R. E. Owens of Harrington Air Service, Inc.

Postmaster Ford said other special flights to Cleveland or Columbus may be set later in the week in connection with airmail week, which continues through Saturday.

He said permission from the Post Office department in Washington was necessary before the flights were authorized and that he was awaiting word from Washington.

Although air mail traffic serving Mansfield has expanded greatly during the last few years, today's flight dramatized the need for still greater improvements, Routzon pointed out.

The city has applied for feeder airlines to Columbus and Cleveland. If the Civil Aeronautics board approves the application, air mail services will be speeded up greatly.

ONE OF FIVE WHO CONTROL TOP WEAPON

R. F. Bacher on Board Given Power Over All A-Bomb Parts, Materials.

A five-man civilian board, including a native of Loudonville, prepared today to take over the decisive task of atomic control—which President Truman said "will determine the course of civilization."

The Loudonville member is Dr. Robert F. Bacher, 41, youngest member of the board. He was born Aug. 31, 1905, in Loudonville, 16 miles southeast of Mansfield.

He took his bachelor of science degree at the University of Michigan in 1926. Dr. Bacher was active in radar development from 1940 to 1945, while on leave from Cornell university.

He was a member of the scientific advisory committee of Manhattan Engineer district (atomic bomb) project, and at present is professor of physics and director of the laboratory of nuclear studies at Cornell.

The Associated Press reported the five—a federal power expert, a physicist, an editor, a retired rear admiral and an investment banker—thus shouldered "responsibilities as great as any men have ever assumed in peacetime."

Lilienthal at Head.

Those were the words President Truman used in announcing the make-up of the all-powerful new atomic energy commission, headed by David E. Lilienthal as chairman.

"The consequences of our work, for good or evil, are awesome," Lilienthal said, yielding up his chairmanship of the Tennessee Valley Authority to accept the assignment.

In addition to Lilienthal and Bacher, Mr. Truman selected for the commission set up three months ago by congress:

William W. Waymack, 58, editor of the Des Moines Register and winner of the Pulitzer award in 1937 for distinguished editorial writing. He also is a director of both the Chicago Federal Reserve bank and the Carnegie endowment for international peace.

Rear Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, retired, 50, former member of the army-navy munitions board, one-time secretary to Herbert Hoover and now a partner in the New York banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb and company. He has played an active role in cancer research.

Summer T. Pike, 55, an investment banker who until last March was a member of the Securities Exchange Commission. Pike, whose home is in Lubec, Me., quit the SEC with the explanation, "I'm getting stale."

Clapp Takes Post.

As Lilienthal's successor as head of the giant TVA, Mr. Truman named Gordon R. Clapp, general manager of the government utility since 1939. Clapp received the appointment, which is effective Nov. 1, on his 41st birthday.

The president announced his selections at a special news conference late yesterday.

He signed legislation creating the commission Aug. 1, then spent 12 weeks searching for men whose "abilities and experience" he believes "will command the confidence of the country."

Their appointments, as well as that of Clapp, are subject to senate confirmation when congress reconvenes in January.

0,000 See Mansfield's Biggest Halloween Celebration In Years

By JOHN MINE

Mansfield showed that it had that real, old fashioned alloween spirit last night.

More than 10,000 persons jammed downtown curbs to atch some 1,000 colorfully-costumed paraders compete for :00 in prizes.

The hour-long festival was complete with horns a-blowin' and rattlers a-rattlin'—and just about everybody munching on popcorn or apples.

The Liberty park band led the paraders over North Mulberry, West Fourth and North Main streets. Traffic was blocked out of the downtown area during the parade, and spectators thronged the streets as the parade passed, most of them converging on Central park to see the finish.

It looked like the "old days" of the Hunt Halloween celebrations, and Mrs. Ada Hunt Doerr, the sponsor, said she was well pleased with the repsonse of the public, adding: "As far is I know now, there will be another parade next year."

* * *

Central Park Jammed.

Central park was packed to the fountain as hundreds stood on tiptoe to watch the paraders pass before the judges' stand.

The masqueraders came singly and in pairs and then by the dozens, all headed up by Mrs. Doerr, who was wearing a top hat and black cape and coat.

HALLOWEEN PARADE LACKS ROWDYISM

Five cases of pre-Halloween vandalism were reported to the sheriff's office today, but Mansfield police did not list any instances of rowdyism during the "Help Hunt Halloween" parade last night.

Mrs. John Furr, who lives north of Ganges, told the sheriff's office that an ear of corn was thrown at the windshield of her automobile last night. No damage was reported.

An Ontario resident reported vandals placed a seven-foot log on the side of a road near Ontario, and Mrs. Gale Heickel, of Ontario, said vandals attempted to upset an outside toilet.

The automobile of John Knapp, 311 Myers avenue, was found on county road 13-A at Municipal airport last night, two hours after it was reported stolen from a parking lot in Mansfield. Gerald Higgins, 141 Indiana avenue, reported the four tires of his automobile were flattened.

COAL STRIKE THREAT ENDS

(By Associated Press)

Ending of two major labor disputes and word from President Truman that there would be no strike by 400,000 soft coal miners on Nov. 1 tended to brighten the nation's industrial front today.

Although Mr. Truman announced that the threat of a shutdown of the coal mines was removed, Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug said that the government had not agreed to a demand by John L. Lewis for a new contract for the AFL United Mine Workers.

A spokesman for the secretary said that Krug had arranged a conference for Friday between Lewis, UMW chief, and N. H. Collisson, coal mines administrator, but there was no announcement that the government would reopen negotiations for a new contract.

The UMW president had insisted that unless the government agreed to negotiate a new contract, with wages and hours the chief issues, the current pact made with the government after seizure of mines last May during a strike, would be "void" on Nov. 1.

Labor news of a more cheerful note came from New York. The worst transportation blockade in the city's history was lifted as the eastern phase of the maritime strike ended and the trucking dispute, which had halted the flow of commerce in the metropolitan area for nearly two months, came to virtual cessation.

LAUSCHE DUE HERE THURSDAY

Political campaigning aimed at next Tuesday's election rapidly approached its climax in Richland county today with the announcement that Gov. Frank J. Lausche, Democratic candidate for re-election, will address a public rally here Thursday at 3 p. m.

George W. Biddle, chairman of the Democratic county central committee, said efforts are being made to stage the rally in Central park or in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

"We hope the good weather holds for the outdoor meeting, but if it doesn't Gov. Lausche will talk at the hotel. And everybody's invited," Biddle said.

Others to Speak.

Plans are being made to present local Democratic candidates: Wesley W. Purdy for congress in the 17th district; Norman L. Wolfe for reelection as county auditor, Harry M. Bowman for county representative to the state legislature, and L. L. Rinehart for county commissioner.

"It's practically certain that Senator James W. Huffman, candidate for re-election, will not appear in Richland county," Biddle said.

The announcement of Lausche's appearance here came after the Republicans held their last scheduled public meeting at Shelby last night when Congressman J. Harry McGregor and local GOP candidates spoke.

Endorses Levies.

Meanwhile, Biddle announced that the Democratic county executive committee had gone on record as approving and supporting all of the county's 11 special tax levies and its lone bond issue.

"The committee has not met, but I canvassed most of the members and a majority agree to endorse all the levies and issues," Biddle said.

FLOOD CONTROL MEET CALLED

A detailed plan for the control of flash floods in Mansfield will be discussed Thursday when engineering representatives of two city industries meet with city and county officials, Mayor Roy W. Vaughn said today.

As recent as June of this year two heavy rainstorms struck in quick succession, causing severe damage to industrial plants and homes because sewers could not carry the water off quickly enough.

Floyd G. Brown and associates, an engineering firm at Marion, has drawn a detailed plan for flood control here, the mayor said. It includes the construction of relief sewers and retaining walls in the Wayne and Orange streets areas.

The firm is representing the Tappan Stove company, and the Westinghouse Electric corporation, Vaughn said, two companies hard hit by the June floods.

Main purpose of the Thursday meeting will be to familiarize city and county officials with the proposed plan and to discuss methods of financing and procedure, according to H. A. Stepleton, representative of the Marion engineering firm.

Vaughn said he has called the meeting at Stepleton's request. Scheduled to attend, in addition to Vaughn, Stepleton and Service-Safety Director William W. Enlow are members of city council's sewer committee, headed by Clifford Knarr; City Engineer W. C. Statler, county commissioners, representatives of the Tappan company, the Westinghouse corporation and the Mansfield Conservancy District board.

YRIA OBJECTS TO IMMIGRATION

With the dispute over admitting 0,000 Jewish refugees to Palese obviously in mind, Syrian delete Faris El-Khouri declared:

"In the very exceptional cases here refugees cannot be repatriated, any settlement which proposed for them should take to account the freely expressl wishes of the people of the untry of their proposed settlement.

El-Khouri said Syria was in full reement with the other Arab tions in their opposition to very form of persecution, whethby cause of creed, race, or nanality."

Russia Has No Atom Bomb, Troop Strength Totals 60 Divisions In East, Says Stalin

LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Stalin declared today the Soviet Union has not developed an atom bomb or any similar weapon and said Russia's troop strength in the occupied countries of eastern Europe totalled 60 divisions, to be reduced in two months to 40.

In response to 31 questions submitted to him by Hugh Baillie, president of the United Press associations, Stalin accused Winston Churchill of being among the "instigators of a new war," and disagreed flatly with Secretary of State James F. Byrnes that there is growing tension between Russia and the United States.

In responses to other questions, as broadcast by the Moscow radio, Stalin declared:

1. The government of the U.S.S.R is "indifferent" to the presence of American warships in the Mediterranean.

2. He does not feel the veto power has been used to excess either in the U.N. security council or in the foreign ministers' council.

3. Russia regards the western borders of Poland as permanent.

4. Russia feels that "Yugoslavia has grounds to be dissatisfied" with the peace treaty drafted for Italy at the Paris conference.

5. The U.S.S.R. regards "as unnecessary" the presence of British troops in Greece.

6. He believes that "not only the economic, but also the political, unity of Germany is to be desired."

The responses to Mr. Baillie's questions constituted the second such interview Stalin had granted in a period of slightly more than a month. On Sept. 24, in answer to questions submitted by Alexander Werth of the Sunday Times of London, he said he could see no danger of a new war.

In today's answers, he said he

Charlie's OK, But He's Too Durn Popular

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Charlie, the pigeon who came to dinner and spent four years, has just about outlived his welcome on one Cleveland rooftop.

It's really not so much Charlie though, Fred A. Miller points out, as the company he keeps—and brings home with him

Right now, his list of cronies number 30, and Miller, Charlie's benefactor, says that's too many.

Four years ago Charlie lost his way and landed on Miller's garage roof. Miller made a pet of him and things went fine for a while.

Then Charlie began bringing his pigeon friends home, and like their pal, they stayed on.

Thirty of them now use Miller's roof for quarters and his best efforts to get them to move on have gone for naught.

"What shall I do?" he asked today. "If I shoot them I'll be arrested for discharging firearms. If I try to poison them, the wrong parties might get the poison. And I don't want to have to buy a new roof."

HOGS FLOOD MARKET, FORCE PRICES DOWN

CHICAGO —(INS)— The heaviest October hog receipts in 15 years together with housewives' refusal to pay top retail prices were expected today to force the price of meat down from its high average of the first week of decontrol.

A flood of 37,000 hogs, most of excellent quality, arrived in the Chicago market yesterday and broke prices 25 to 50 cents a hundred pounds below last week's close.

The wholesale price was $3 to $4 below the high point established the first few days of the free trade two weeks ago.

WASHINGTON—(CP)—A radically different method of getting electric power from nature is envisioned in the latest design of Percy H. Thomas, an electrical engineer with the Federal Power Commission. The plan offers the possibility of electricity at lower cost and of being made available where its use is now prohibitive.

Thomas, who has worked on the problem for many years, proposes a battery of giant windmills which would drive electric generators.

Each windmill or "aerogenerator" would be a structure reaching up several hundred feet to catch the wind, and estimated to produce from 5,000 to 10,000 kilowatts.

The planned unit, several models of which have been built, will have 80-foot long, all-metal propellers, each weighing more than eight tons. The shafts of the two propellers will be geared to a centrally-mounted generator, nearly 500 feet above the ground, atop a spider-like steel tower.

With its streamlined generating house, the structure will rise higher than the Washington Monument. In a 28-mile wind, the generator is estimated to produce about 6,500 kilowatts, or enough power for five to six thousand homes.

In the Thomas design, two "windwheels" or propellers, each with three blades, will be used to catch the wind. The windwheels will be located at opposite ends of a steel "bridge," supported on a central turntable, some 43 feet in diameter.

The electrical equipment will be installed in a housing over this turntable. The entire unit will be free to swing into the wind atop the tower.

In order to secure as much wind as possible, Thomas has decided upon the twin-wheel arrangement. Each of the wheels swings in a 200-foot arc. The blades are shaped roughly like that of an airplane propeller, and are 80 feet long and from 8 to 14 feet wide. The blade tips will travel at 340 miles per hour when they make the normal 47½ revolutions per minute.

The high tower was decided upon when investigation showed that the wind several hundred feet above the ground has a 2½ to 3½ times greater energy content than at surface level.

CHURCH SEEKS TO FREE BOYS

ASHLAND—The board of education of the First Methodist church here through its attorney, Charles C. Chapman, has filed application for the reopening of the case against the three boys of the Children's home who were sentenced last week to the Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster.

The three, aged 11, 13 and 14 had pleaded guilty to setting a $15,000 barn afire at the county Children's home and were given sentences to Lancaster by Probate Judge S. G. Boffenmyer.

The application to reopen the case was made to Judge Boffenmyer who said today that he had not reached any decision as to whether he would call for a new trial. If the case is revived in probate court, the boys' case will be reviewed by the State Bureau of Juvenile Research.

Mentime, the boys are being held in the detention room of the Salvation Army here. The decision to keep them in Ashland until further decision in the case, followed vigorous protests against their sentence by various Ashland individuals and groups.

The Light of Feet — Sometimes I think that of all the members of the show and night life profession, dance teams work the hardest for the skimpest rewards. With neither recordings nor radio of any use to them for reaching audiences, the struggle seems too physically demanding and the career too short—with just a few exceptions. A dancer in a ballroom team must have the legs of a racer, the wind of a trumpet player and the figure of a glamour model, and there is no letting up or getting fat between seasons because a dancer has to stay in training, come rain or shine or layoffs.

* * *

The current greats of the ballroom dance field are Tony DeMarco and his Sally. Tony still has the dash, the expressive hands and the skillful feet of his sky-rocket years, but he has worn out a lot of partners. Sally, now Mrs. DeMarco, is his ninth terpsichorian vis-a-vis. Not long ago I asked Tony who, in his opinion, was the dance team of all time. For style and color he picked the immortal Irene and Vernon Castle. Maurice and Florence Walton were magnificent, he said, but they didn't have enough "verve." Tony thinks people in the dance business are a little lost if they don't cut themselves a chunk of verve.

* * *

Dance teams have been plentiful and plenty graceful since the Castles Castle-walked over the civilized world. There were Moss and Fontana, who held sway at the swank Lido Club for so many of the gay years surrounding the demise of prohibition. The Lido had a five dollar cover charge, and the ropes were worn thin from the crush against them every evening. What has become of Georges Fontana? Why, he owns a lucrative liquor agency and doesn't worry a bit about his waistline . . . Ramon and Rosita were part owners of the handsome El Patio, where they starred in the Moss-Fontana era. Ramon doesn't dance any more, but he's still in show business as a theatrical agent in Mexico City . . . Loper and Barratt, who had great style, got the Copa turban and then went to Hollywood. Maxine has decided to be an actress now, and Don is California's most fantastically high price couturier—a gent who puts $25,000 worth of jeweled buttons on a simple little daytime suit!

* * *

Adele Astaire, as all the society editors know, quit to marry Lord Cavendish, and Fred continued their bright footwork pattern with Ginger Rogers, Lucille Bremer and other screen gals. . . Paul Haakon was teamed with Patricia Bowman, but is now a single . . . He's the Alfred Lunt of the dancers—a terrific chef, carpenter, plumber and jack of all trades . . . Jack Holland had many partners, all called June — June Hart, June Knight, etcetera etcetera. It is little known in our parts that Jack is tremendously wealthy—his family built dams and bridges, and were the original backers of Henry Kaiser. Jack has retired to count his shekels and play amateur tennis . . . Veloz and Yolanda go on like Ol' Man River and pile up the golden coin with dance concerts and take time out now and then to play house with their three children . . . Then there are Paul and Grace Hartman, the Mr. and Mrs. team that goes on starring with their peculiar and never successfully imitated brand of comedy genius, satirizing the hard-working short-careered serious dancers. They keep talking about shelving their fast-stepping for a Broadway comedy stint.

How To Satisfy Eager Appetites

You can quickly tell whether a hungry baby likes the milk in his bottle, because taste makes a difference to babies just as it does to grown-ups. Isaly's Homogenized Vitamin D Milk has an appetizing, taste-pleasing flavor that babies like, a flavor far superior to regular milk. Here's why . . .

Homogenization—a scientific process which Isaly's use—increases the number of cream particles by forcing every drop through very small openings at extremely high pressure. The cream particles are made smaller, but there are nearly 10 times more of them. These smaller cream particles combine with the milk and never separate. So actually, there's cream in every drop. But how does this affect the taste of milk?

First, there are more cream particles to come in contact with the taste buds of the tongue. That means a richer, a creamier taste. Second, the cream particles are evenly distributed through the milk. That means a smoother, more uniform flavor and equal nourishment in each serving.

Satisfy the appetite of your baby with Isaly's Homogenized Vitamin D Milk, the milk with the satisfying, taste-pleasing flavor. Try it today.

Isaly's Homogenized Vitamin D Milk is available at your grocery, all Isaly Dairy stores and from the Isaly route man who delivers in your neighborhood. Telephone 4217-6 if you'd like regular home delivery service. This richer, better milk may be quickly identified by the crisp, golden cellophane hood on each bottle.

SPORTS ROUND UP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK — (AP) — If you've wondered why Alabama's Rose Bowl team lost that game to Tennessee and hasn't rolled up any big scores against its other major rivals, the word from Tuscaloosa is "we're still using a 1945 team in a 1946 league." . . . Ten of the 'Bama Rose Bowl starters still are on the first team.

Play of the week is credited to the Philly Eagles' Greasy Neale when he switched from the "T" formation to the single wing and the Eagles rolled up 28 points against Washington in the last half. . . . The Idaho Southern university football stadium has been renamed the "Spud Bowl." No doubt that's where the opposition will get smashed.

Eleven Fives Enter City A Cage Loop

Eleven teams turned out for the organizational meeting of the City "A" basketball league last night at Yuncker's Sports, Joe Lesch, league president, announced today.

Lesch said that this is the biggest representation ever to enter the city loop. Yuncker's Sports, Smokehouse, Mansfield Tire, Urschell Insurance, McCarrick's Gulf station, D. A. V., Ohio Sports Center, Richland Beverage, Richland Post 72, Komito Clothing, and Mansfield Tigers had men at the meeting for their hardwood quintets.

Lesch is hopeful in procuring the Mansfield Senior high school court and said that the league would have to play two nights a week. The loop will start the latter part of November.

A meeting to discuss rules will be held next Monday night at Yuncker's at 8 o'clock, Lesch said.

MANSFIELD SKIDS IN GRID POLL

Tygers Fall To Tenth In Balloting

By JOHN BARRINGTON

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Ohio high school football built rapidly toward a roaring crescendo today.

Ahead of the select few teams retaining a chance at the mythical state championship lay the most vital week-end schedule of the year.

Behind them lay the usual run of upsets and near upsets that had shifted the spotlight onto a quartet of strong dark-horses—Lima Central, Dayton Chaminade, Campbell Memorial and Youngstown Woodrow Wilson.

Sportswriters balloting in the International News Service weekly poll strung along with Cleveland Cathedral Latin as a first place choice, apparently satisfied with the Lions' 10-9 victory over Benedictine.

1. Cleveland Cathedral Latin (6-0-1)
2. Toledo Waite (6-1-0)
3. Massillon (4-1-1)
4. Lima Central (7-0-0)
5. Dayton Chaminade (6-0-0)
6. Campbell Memorial (7-0-0)
7. Youngstown Woodrow Wilson (7-0-0)
8. Canton McKinley (5-1-1)
9. Steubenville Central Catholic (6-0-1)
10. Mansfield (5-0-2)

In second place, too, the familiar name of Toledo Waite was supported most strongly as the Indians walloped Toledo Central, 32 to 0. Massillon and Mansfield who shared second with Waite last week, slipped to third and tenth, respectively.

Massillon defeated Warren, 19-6, while Mansfield played a surprising six-all tie with Canton Timken.

Both Latin and Waite face "make or break" assignments this week-end. Waite meets Mansfield, while Latin plays a Collinwood eleven that beat Cleveland Central, 32-0, for its seventh in a row.

Lima Central was moved up to fourth place by the scribes on the basis of a 45-7 thumping of Van Wert. Central meets undefeated Dayton Oakwood Friday.

Chaminade and Campbell were tied for fifth place, while Wilson was a strong seventh. As was the case a week ago, the margin between third and seventh place was practically negligible.

Chaminade polished off Wilbur Wright of its home town, 35 to 7, as it tuned up for a highly important battle with Massillon. Campbell blanked Niles, 20-0, while Youngstown Wilson smashed Rayen, 38-7.

Canton McKinley, held to a scoreless draw by Steubenville Wells, slumped to eighth place Steubenville Central Catholic continued to run ninth as it triumphed over Dayton Fairview, 26-6.

At least two teams who failed to make the top ten might be justified in asking "how come." Toledo Libbey, itself unbeaten and the only club to defeat Waite in two years, drubbed Scott, 32 to 0. Cincinnati Purcell ran up its 25th victory in a streak broken only by a lone tie as it won from Roger Bacon, 34-7.

Barberton's Magics were the principal casualty among unbeaten clubs, losing to Alliance, 7 to 6. Bowling Green became the first team to sully Fremont's record, 12-0.

Troy and Bluffton rolled along with perfect slates by concocting victories over Dayton Fairmont and Wapakoneta, respectively.

Barons and Bisons Meet Three Times

The Buffalo Bisons are the chief order of business for the Cleveland Barons, who will tangle with last year's American Hockey League champions three times during the week. The first game will be played at Buffalo Wednesday night with the two clubs returning to the Arena in Cleveland for a Saturday night clash, and then moving back to the Bison's rink for a Sunday contest.

In their lone meeting this season played on Cleveland ice, the Barons slapped a 5-3 licking on the Buffalo club.

Appleseed and Simpson Ready For Halloween Gridiron Battle

By BRUCE M'GINTY

John Simpson and Johnny Appleseed junior high schools take the spotlight in the most important grid classic in the Mansfield area Thursday night, when they meet in the seventh annual battle for the city championship at Stadium field at 8 o'clock.

Appleseed has defeated Simpson only twice in the previous six years, 18 to 0, in 1944, and 19 to 0, last year. The Pioneers compiled 97 points in five games this season and had only one touchdown scored on them.

Simpson rolled up 94 points and allowed the opponents 27 points.

Coach Norm Henline, Appleseed mentor, said that the game will be determined by the team that does the best defensively. He announced that tackling and blocking will be the deciding factor.

Coach Bob Kennedy said that the Bulldogs will employ straight football with a combination of running and passing plays. Kennedy's team will look much like the men from Mars as several men on his squad will be wearing special braces and casts.

Ken McCally, regular left halfback, has a heavy cast for his hand and Tommy Tucker will be back at his right half post for the first time in three weeks. Tucker suffered a broken thumb the day before the Ashland game.

Johnny Sazdanoff is still receiving medical attention due to a shoulder injury and will be well padded for rthis grid tussle. He will see home action, however.

Kenny Snider, 208-pound tackle, who broke his leg early in the season, is the only Appleseed player shelved. The remainder of the Pioneer squad is in good physical condition.

During the pre-game pep rallies, both schools will present their queens and attendants at the schools. Before the game the girls will be driven around the track and at halftime they will again be introduced.

Janet Hardin, ninth grade Appleseed student will sit on the throne for the Pioneer's. Her attendants will be Marilyn Graham and Beverly Bissell, ninth grade; Francis Draffan and Martha Kinkel, eighth grade and Diane Hayward and Priscilla Slabaugh, seventh grade.

Simpson's queen is Betsey Clark, and her attendants will be Norma Jordan, Billie Bride, Charlotte Boyd, June Green, Joan Jackson and Marilyn Smith. All the Simpson girls are ninth graders.

Appleseed will present its 40-piece marching band and Simpson's 35 musicians will be wearing their new uniforms for the first time.

Bucks Prepped On 'Backers'

COLUMBUS —(UP)— Professor Paul Bixler today had his Ohio State football team scheduled for a short course in "what to do about linebackers."

This bit of preparation for the Northwestern game Saturday was a necessity, assuming that Scouts Ernie Godfrey and Esco Sarkkinen weren't kidding press and radio men at a luncheon yesterday.

The two Ohio State assistants who have seen Northwestern play insisted that in Center Alex Sarkisian, Guard Ed Hirsch, and Fullback Ralph Everist, Northwestern had the greatest trio of linebackers in the 48 states and Hawaii.

There was evidence to support their claims, for other coaches around the Western conference have made the same sweeping assertion.

Transfer of Hirsch from fullback to guard gave Lynn Waldorf a perfect set-up for a five man line on the defense, and that is what he has used most of the time this season, with excellent results.

The Buckeyes viewed pictures of their 39-9 triumph over Minnesota yesterday, then went through a brief drill with the emphasis on defenses against a potent Wildcat running game led by Frank Aschenbrenner.

All the Buckeyes were in good shape, although Center Tony Adamle came out of the Minnesota tussle with a mouthful of loose teeth. He caught Ev Faunce's cleated shoe square in the face, and had to use a headgear with a face guard from there on in.

BIG NINE FAVORS ROSE BOWL PLAY

CHICAGO—(UP)—The Western conference, reversing its traditional stand, decided unofficially today in favor of participation in the annual Rose Bowl football classics—for a limited period.

Participation by the Big Nine seemed assured last night, when Purdue university approved a plan under which a Big Nine team would represent the "East" in the New Year's day classic for a three-year period.

Purdue's ballot brought the conference members' vote to 5 to 2 in favor of the plan, with two schools still to be heard from.

Big Nine members were confident that the Pacific Coast conference would readily agree on the plan—once it is formally and officially approved by the Western conference.

No formal Western conference action will be taken, however, until conference headquarters receives a complete official tally of the poll.

Purdue's affirmative vote apparently cleared the way of any "eastern" obstacle to the plan and raised the possibility that the winner of the current Big Nine championship might play in the 1947 New Year's day Rose Bowl game.

Kenneth L. Wilson, Western conference commissioner, had said that official Big Nine approval would lead to negotiations with the Pacific Coast conference. Wilson said that in the past the Pacific Coast conference had "indicated a desire to enter into such an agreement."

Under the participation plan on which Big Nine schools are being polled the Western conference team would represent the East in the Rose Bowl for three years and Big Nine members would designate any team of their choice to represent the East the last two years.

Formal action presumably would await a conference meeting of all Big Nine faculty representatives. Wilson said that at the earliest an official statement would not be made until the middle of November.

Assuming that an agreement is reached between the two conferences in time for it to affect the 1947 Rose Bowl game, Northwestern becomes the "favorite" to represent the East in the annual classic.

Northwestern, which along with Wisconsin has yet to cast its ballot on the question of participation, is leading the conference race.

Purdue's faculty athletic committee announced its formal approval of the proposal, after its regular meeting at Lafayette, Ind. Other schools which reportedly have voted for the plan are Ohio State, Michigan, Iowa and Indiana.

Illinois and Minnesota were understood to have voted against the plan.

Reynolds to Meet Demchuk

Davey Reynolds will get another crack at the junior heavyweight belt now in the possession of Johnny Demchuk in this week's wrestling card at the Armory, Thursday night at 8:15 o'clock.

Reynolds, who had signed for last week's card with Demchuk, was unable to appear due to an illness but will be ready to grapple the champ this week.

Demchuk, who is undefeated in Mansfield, took a quick decision over Angelo Martinelli, who replaced Reynolds, when he employed his famous "rolling toe hold" on Martinelli.

This 90 minute, two-of-three falls main-go should provide Mansfield wrestling fans plenty of grappling excitement as Reynolds has made a very good showing and should give the champ much trouble.

In the preliminary, Promoter Earl Myers has Speed LaRance matched against Jesse James in a 60 minute best two-of-three falls contest.

Mansfield Sophs Host to Lorain

Mansfield Tyger sophomores make their final home appearance of the 1946 campaign tomorrow when they collide with the Lorain reserves on the Stadium field gridiron at 4 p. m.

Coach Fred Staub's Cubs have won five of six contests this season. They defeated the Marion Harding reserves, 47-7, last week as Joe Miller completed 16 of 20 passes for two touchdowns. He scored three TD's on running plays.

STAMFORD, Conn. — Buddy Knox, 199½, Dayton, Ohio, outpointed George (Cowboy) Bensick, 185, Pueblo, Colo., (8).

Army, Notre Dame and Penn Rate at Top of College Heap

NEW YORK—(AP)—The top trio among the country's football powerhouses—Army, Notre Dame and Penn—today headed in that order into the last half of the race to decide the 1946 national championship.

And while it appeared more certain than ever that the titanic clash of the Cadets and the Irish here a week from Saturday would all but decide, it also became evident George Munger's Quakers were going to have their say in the deciding.

Army, salting away victory No. 24 with its 19-0 victory over Duke, had no trouble staying at the top in the Associated Press' weekly poll of the nation's sports writers, while Notre Dame enhanced its second-place standing with a 41-6 romp over Iowa.

With Texas and Tennessee tumped from the ranks of the unbeaten and untied, Penn's 32-19 verdict over Navy moved the Quakers from sixth place into third. Another shift jumped the University of California at Los Angeles, Pacific coast pace-setter, from fifth to fourth.

Team	Points
1—Army (104)	1,647
2—Notre Dame (61)	1,578
3—Pennsylvania (4)	1,100
4—U. C. L. A. (1)	1,018
5—Georgia (1)	935
6—Northwestern	659
7—Texas	500
8—Rice	465
9—North Carolina	281
10—Tennessee	191

11—Illinois, 126; 12—Wake Forest, 101 4/5; 13—Michigan, 90 4/5; 14—Oklahoma, 85 4/5; 15—Alabama, 83 4/5; 16—Georgia Tech, 79 4/5; 17—Harvard (one first place vote), 66; 18—Wisconsin, 60; 19—Duke, 40; 20—Indiana, 34.

Penn, like Army and Notre Dame, has an easy week ahead, meeting Princeton while the Cadets ease off with West Virginia and the Irish meet Navy. And Columbia, Penn's next opponent, should do nothing to mar the Quakers' unbeaten record going into their Nov. 16 clash with Army.

Of the 172 scribes casting ballots in this fourth weekly poll, 104 put Army at the head of the list. Sixty-one—40 more than last week—favored Notre Dame as the No. 1 team. The other seven first-place ballots were split among Penn, with four, and UCLA, Georgia and Harvard, with one apiece.

Based on the usual system of ten points for a first-place vote, nine for a second, eight for a third, and so on, Army piled up a staggering 1,647 points, 138 more than last week's count. Notre Dame picked up 238 over last week for a 1,578 total. Penn and UCLA were the two other teams to top the 1,000 mark.

Among those receiving one or more points was Ohio State which got nine.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennett Cerf

George Jessel has a grievance against the Hotel Ambassador in Chicago, which he confided to Ashton Stevens He was doing six shows a day at the Chicago theater, and tumbled into his bed at the Ambassador after opening day.

Just as he was falling asleep, the revolving beacon from the Palmolive Building shone on his bed. Half awake, Jessel jumped to the floor, bowed and sang two more songs.

G K Chesterton once remarked, "The thing I hate most about an argument is that it always interrupts a discussion." Chesterton is also credited with the story of the wily bandit who finally was caught by the king's troopers The king, who was fond of games and riddles, told the bandit, "You may make a statement If you tell the truth in it, you will be shot If you lie, you will be hanged"

The bandit, without hesitation, put everything in a fine mess by declaring, "Sire, I am going to be hanged"

Barclay On Bridge

"EVERYTHING happens to me" That is the plaint of many a pretty good social bridge player when his side takes a bad beating on a hand. In all kindliness, it can usually be pointed out that the disaster was worse than it had to be, that the victim could have limited his side's loss by different action of some kind somewhere along the line, in the bidding or the play Misfits are ghastly things and can be quite costly, but they do not necessarily have to produce maximum damage if handled adroitly

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♣

After North passed that, what happened to his partner was a caution The heart J was ruffed by the club 3, the diamond A was led, the 7 ruffed by the club 2, the heart 8 by the club 6, the diamond 4 by the club K and overruffed by the A, the heart 6 by the club 9, then the declarer ruffed the diamond 2 with the club Q He scored the club J and led the 7 to the 8 West then laid down the spade A. He returned the heart 9, so South got the last three tricks with the heart A and K and club 4, for down five.

"Everything happens to me; I should have kept my big mouth shut!" exclaimed North then. That wasn't quite right. He should have spoken differently If he had bid his diamonds on either his second or third turn, he could have saved much of the damage. That is, if his partner then handled his part of the job correctly Bidding spades every time should be blamed for most of the trouble. Some part of the blame should also be attached to South for not letting the 3-Spades ride. Then, of course, North might have saved a trick by shifting from 4-Clubs to 4-Hearts, the first-bid suit, but he was afraid South might then go to at least five in hearts, possibly six Oh, well!

TURKEY PARADES MILITARY POWER

ISTANBUL —(INS)— The Turks celebrated "National day" today with vast parades of infantry and mechanized armored forces in Ankara, Istanbul and other Turkish cities.

Diplomatic observers viewed the demonstration as an expression of Turkey's determination to resist any aggression, particularly in the light of Russia's repeated demands for bases on the Dardanelles

ELECT A REPUBLICAN CONGRESS

A FACT TO REMEMBER

The FIRST vote of your Congressman is most important. McGregor will vote Republican on questions of organization. His opponent will vote with the present New Deal machine on the election of the presiding officers of the House and the selection of members of the Congressional Committees which determine which bills shall be considered and which shall not, and which conduct investigations into situations where there are indications of corruption, of mismanagement or waste in the administration of the affairs of Government.

REMEMBER THIS . . . SO LONG AS THE DEMOCRATS HAVE MAJORITIES IN THE TWO HOUSES OF CONGRESS THERE WILL BE NEW DEAL PRESIDING OFFICERS IN THE SENATE AND HOUSE, AND THERE WILL BE NEW DEAL MAJORITIES ON ALL OF THE LEGISLATIVE AND INVESTIGATING COMMITTEES.

If the voters want a constructive legislative program to preserve our liberal form of government and our American enterprise system; if the voters want a thorough-going investigation of such subjects as the current war contracts scandals; the answer is:

Vote For J. HARRY McGREGOR

Issued By McGregor-for-Congress Committee
D. Whitney, Secy.

—By Thornton W. Burgess

JERRY'S SMART TRICK

Rattles the Kingfisher had dived into the Smiling Pool. Now he flew up to his former perch. He had the fish for which he had plunged. He had it crosswise in his big bill. Now he turned the fish so as to swallow it head first. Peter Rabbit watched him impatiently. Rattles couldn't talk with his mouth full. Certainly not. It seemed to Peter that the tail of that fish never would go out of sight in the big bill. But it did, and at last Rattles stopped swallowing. At Peter's feet on the bank were two Clams. Rattles had said that Jerry Muskrat had left them there to be opened for him by jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun.

"That was a silly thing to say. Did you really expect me to believe it?" said Peter when he saw that Rattles could once more use his tongue.

Rattles looked surprised. "What was silly?" he asked.

"To say that Jerry Muskrat left these Clams here for Mr. Sun to open. How can he and why should he?" retorted Peter.

"I don't know how he can, but he can and will. Whether you believe it or not won't make the least bit of difference to anybody, Peter Rabbit", said Rattle harshly. "If you've nothing better to do, and of course you haven't, sit around a while and see for yourself".

"I will," said Peter.

So for a long time Peter sat watching those Clams. Nothing happened. Jerry Muskrat didn't come to look at them and no one else paid any attention to them. After while Peter began to doze. Sitting out there in the open was no place for a sensible Rabbit to take a nap, so with a last look at those two Clams lying there in the sun Peter sought a comfortable place where he was not likely to be seen, and dozed.

He was very comfortable. For quite a while he dozed. He forgot those Clams. When he did remember them he hurried over to look at them. They seemed to be just as they were when he had last looked at them. He wasn't surprised. He wasn't disappointed. He hadn't expected to find them any different. He was trying to make up his mind whether to stay a while longer or go back to the dear Old Briar-patch when he saw Jerry Muskrat swimming toward him. Peter retreated a little way. Perhaps he thought Jerry might not like his being so near those Clams. And Jerry's teeth were big and strong. just as Rattles had said.

Jerry came ashore and looked the Clams over. It seemed to Peter that he looked a little disappointed. Peter just had to ask questions.

"Did you put these things there?" he ventured.

"I certainly did. Those Clams are mine, and if you know what is good for yourself you will leave them alone," squeaked Jerry so crossly that Peter was sure now that he really was disappointed.

"I will!" Peter cried, hastily. "I would have no use for them even if they were not yours. I was just wondering why you put them out there on the bank instead of opening and eating them. Why did you?"

"For Mr. Sun to open for me," replied Jerry in the most matter-of-fact tone.

"Not really? How can Mr. Sun open them?" chied Peter.

"Don't ask me. He can and will and that will save me a lot of trouble," said Jerry.

"If you say he will, of course he will. You wouldn't leave them there if you didn't know. But I don't understand it. No, sir, I don't understand it," said Peter.

"I have an idea he makes it too warm for them. I guess they don't like to be warm. They live in the mud under water and it never really is warm down there. They can't live very long out of water anyway, and when Mr. Sun shines on them I guess they are more uncomfortable than ever and after a while haven't enough strength to hold the shells together. Anyway, that's my guess. All I really know is that if I put Clams out where Mr. Sun shines on them they open after a while, and that's enough for me," explained Jerry.

The next story: "The Missing Clam."

EARLY START FIXED FOR NEW FIRE STATION

City Hopes to Begin Marion Avenue Project Early Next Year.

Mansfield is now "in a position" to hire an architect for No. 5 fire station to be located on Marion avenue, and the city hopes to get construction started early next year, Service-Safety Director William W. Enlow said today.

He added, however, that date for the starting of construction is indefinite and will depend upon the material supply and "general building" picture.

The city, nevertheless, wants to get construction underway as soon as possible, he said.

Final meeting on plans for the new station was held yesterday. It will be a residential type structure, and will include up-to-date hose washing and drying facilities, something Mansfield stations do not now have.

The city has purchased land on the east side of Marion avenue, just south of Cline avenue for $5,000 for the new station.

Meeting yesterday on the plans were Enlow, Mayor Roy W. Vaughn, Councilmen Fred Miller and Charles Shultz and Fire Chief L. J. Steele.

Brutal Slayer Goes To Chair

BELLEFONTE, Pa. — (U.P.) — Frederick Morris, 24-year-old stevedore, died in the electric chair yesterday for the brutal sex slaying of a Chester, Pa., housewife after trying unsuccessfully to join his alleged accomplice in suicide.

Morris was sentenced to death for the fatal beating of Mrs. Rose Reynolds, 49, who was dragged from her home and beaten so severely that her husband was unable to identify her body until shown her clothing. Her nude body was covered with tooth marks. A jury deliberated only 10 minutes before convicting him last June 13.

BUCYRUS—It took only three hours for police to find an automobile belonging to Elden Spaid. The car was stolen from its parking place downtown and was located on the outskirts of the city, out of gas.

Lausche Defends Ohio Mental Program

Winchell — On Broadway

BEFORE THE ALLIES at the U. N. Assembly start the depressing business of quarreling among themselves, the peace of the world demands they return to the old, grim business of finishing the enemy—Germany . . . That enemy has not only twice attacked—but twice double-crossed EACH of the Allies . . . Yet both blocs are in an out-and-out horse race to make the Germans their wives.

* * *

Haven't the ruins of Coventry, the torture of Stalingrad and the graves of Normandy proven that a Nazi with a hand grenade and a bayonet is as trustworthy a pal as John Dillinger with a tommy gun?

* * *

The Nazi underground cells which Hitler placed throughout the world (including the United States) are twitching like a snake without a head. The body of Nazism is still very much alive.

Why does Molotov think the great legions of the Russian army died before Moscow? To protect the Romanian Iron Guard and the Ukrainian traitors? . . . Why does Bevin think the magnificent Royal Navy covered the floor of the Arctic seas with its sailors? To protect fascist Sir Oswald Moseley? . . . Why does Byrnes think Bradley, Hodges and Patton left American dead from Casablanca to the Rhine? To protect Fritz Kuhn, the untried 26 alleged seditionists and Joe McWilliams?

Before they replace the fangs of the Nazi serpent, won't Molotov, Bevin and Byrnes please realize—for the sake of the generation of 1955—that there is no such thing as a pet cobra or a reformed Nazi?

The world is running a fever while diplomats squat on their brains and behave as though they are wondering what is holding up the undertaker . . . After swapping headlocks in Paris, the boys in the zebra-style britches are ready for another tangle in New York . . . Ironically enough, the outlook for the Allies was all peaches and cream until the power politicos (disguised as peace makers) commenced grappling for larger chunks of real estate.

* * *

LISTEN! That sound you hear is the dove scampering toward the nearest foxhole . . . The spree of strong-arm diplomacy can only send this battered planet reeling toward another war. . . . When leaders of nations transform confabs into night club brawls it usually is most harmful to the drunx involved . . . Just look at the gleeful smiles (of their mutual foes) goading them into another struggle . . . And only a few days ago Goering and company proved what the payoff was for international rough-housing.

Pegler — Fair Enough

NEW YORK — After George Raft's expensive dinner party at the Sherry-Netherlands hotel on March 24, 1944, in honor of Martin Shurin, jr., whom he never had seen before in his life, the merry company, by common consent or intuition, went around the corner to the apartment of Leo Durocher, the idol of baseball fandom as he is called in Brooklyn.

Four young ladies had joined the gentlemen and went along to meet such developments as might ensue. These developments included 13 straight passes with the crap-dice by Mr. Raft and the loss of $18,500 by Mr. Shurin.

Mr. Shurin had been a salesman of bed-spreads but, with the onrush of the forces of aggression, he had abandoned this career to serve democracy by manufacturing a little thing like a bolt for airplane engines at 50 cents apiece under sub-contract from one of the big aeronautical companies. He said he, in turn, sub-contracted the job to a company which had a shop, for the modest royalty of 25 cents per bolt, and that this sub-sub-contractor thus was enabled not only to enjoy the sensation of helping to save civilization but to make a legitimate profit, too, out of the other 25 cents. In this vitally essential role, Mr. Shurin had time and money for relaxation. He mentioned having lost $100,000 at craps over a period of time but mentioned $450,000 in banks as well.

* * *

WE HAVE NOW walked around the corner with Mr. Shurin and the other guests and find ourselves at Mr. Durocher's door. Mr. Durocher is up at Bear Mountain with his ball-club, the Brooklyn Bums, engaged in spring training. Mr. Raft has the key, however, given to him by Durocher a few days before when Leo tore himself away from the training camp to dine with Raft in town. And why not? They were very old and very close friends. Mr. Durocher said, in fact, that he had often visited Raft whose name seems to have been Ranft a long time ago, at his home in Coldwater Canyon, Beverly Hills, Calif.

He had there the singular honor of meeting Bugsy Siegal, who ranks among the aristocracy in the registers of both the F.B.I. and the Bureau of Narcotics of the Treasury.

But here we all are, the jovial company at Leo Durocher's door on the night of March 24, 1944, with four ladies of beauty and culture and the sucker of the evening, waiting for Mr. Raft to let us in to have at the chump.

MR. SHURIN certainly didn't think up the idea of going to Durocher's to shoot crap. That we know, because he has never met Durocher. He didn't seek out Mr. Raft and his jovial circle, because he is a goggle-eyed name-chaser and autograph hunter who didn't aspire to such noble society. He was invited. We are sure that the invitation was arranged by the other side of the equation. If Mr. Raft had no reasonable prospect of taking a chump this night he must be a very generous man to give the party and flatter an insignificant bed-spread salesman with no social quality to recommend him.

While waiting for tomorrow's installment to open the door on the crucial events of the evening let us dwell in thought upon the course that the baseball industry is taking after the long years of aloofness from gangsters, gamblers and the errors of 1919 when the World Series was thrown to the Reds by the White Sox in a historic and scandalous fake. That was a gambling coup of underworld gangsters like the friends of Raft, the friend of Leo Durocher.

After the expose in 1920, when one of the poor, humiliated crooks came out of the grand jury room, a Chicago kid was said to have cried from his heart, "Say it ain't true, Joe; say it ain't true."

But times and morals change and the Brooklyn kid of today might pluck Durocher's sleeve and ask to be introduced to his friend, George Raft, as a hero who made 13 consecutive fours and tens, most of them the hard way. There would be a hero to emulate.

Lippmann — Today and Tomorrow

ON THE QUESTION of the military forces which the Big Three are maintaining in foreign countries we have an unusual opportunity to make things much worse or to begin making them considerably better. It depends at the outset on how the question is put.

The fact is that all of the Big Three have armed forces today in places where they did not have them in 1939. They are not only in Germany and Japan but in the places which the Axis had conquered and was then compelled to evacuate. They are in Poland, Austria and Yugoslavia, in Italy and the Italian empire, Greece and Indonesia, in Manchuria, Korea, North China and the former Japanese island empire in the Pacific.

They are where they are by agreements among the Big Three made during the war under their common strategical plan for winning the war. But, since there is no common diplomatic plan for the settlement of the war, these forces are a constant cause of conflict, threat, suspicion and embarrassment. They are the nettle which statesmen will have to grasp if they are to make any progress toward a workable settlement among the great powers.

* * *

THUS FAR, however, no one of the Big Three has been willing to deal with the situation as a whole. While many noble words have been uttered about dividing one world into rival blocs, none of the statesmen who are attempting to make peace has as yet taken the position that there can be no settlement in one of the three spheres of military influence except as part of a general settlement in all of them. On the contrary, each has sought to consolidate its position in its own sphere and to interfere in some other sphere.

All have used either the formal veto or its equivalent to avoid a negotiation which would treat each of the spheres as one element of the whole world-wide distribution of power. Thus far they have all sought separate settlements in some one of the spheres and this is perhaps the final and controlling reason why there is as yet not even the beginning, not even the project, not even the idea, of a general settlement, and why peace-making has degenerated into a competition for advantage in the event of a war.

* * *

All three of the big powers have selected some partial and special aspect of the military situation and have exploited it for their own special and separate ends.

YET IF EVER and whenever we resume genuine diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, and get down to the realities, we shall have to begin our serious discussion where Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin left off: With an examination of the distribution of power among the Big Three. For the arguments by Messrs. Bevin, Molotov and Byrnes have dealt not only with the periphery of Europe, but with the symptoms rather than the actualities of the trouble among the Big Three. They have not dealt with the substance of their relationship as a genuine diplomatic negotiation would have to.

The day will come, however, when the Big Three will not merely play power politics, but will be compelled to negotiate about the distribution of their power. Then we shall discuss in one discussion, and in their bearing upon one another, the Red Army in eastern Europe and in eastern Asia, the British and the American Armies, fleets, air forces and atomic weapons in Europe, in the Middle East and the Far East. That will be the beginning of the real peace conference.

Then we shall be seeking, as peacemakers must, an equilibrium of power as the foundation of a general settlement of the war, and of the United Nations as the organized effort of mankind.

Until then we shall all be engaged not in settling the war we have just won, or making the United Nations secure, but in pretending to do these things while we are more deeply preoccupied with the quest of special advantage and the conduct of psychological warfare.

BOARD MAY ASK NEW TRIAL FOR 3 COUNTY BOYS

New Hearing Motion For Lads Sentenced For County Fire Expected.

ASHLAND — The Ashland county county child welfare board is expected to file a motion for a new hearing for the three young boys convicted last week of setting the $15,000 fire which destroyed a barn at the children's home last Monday.

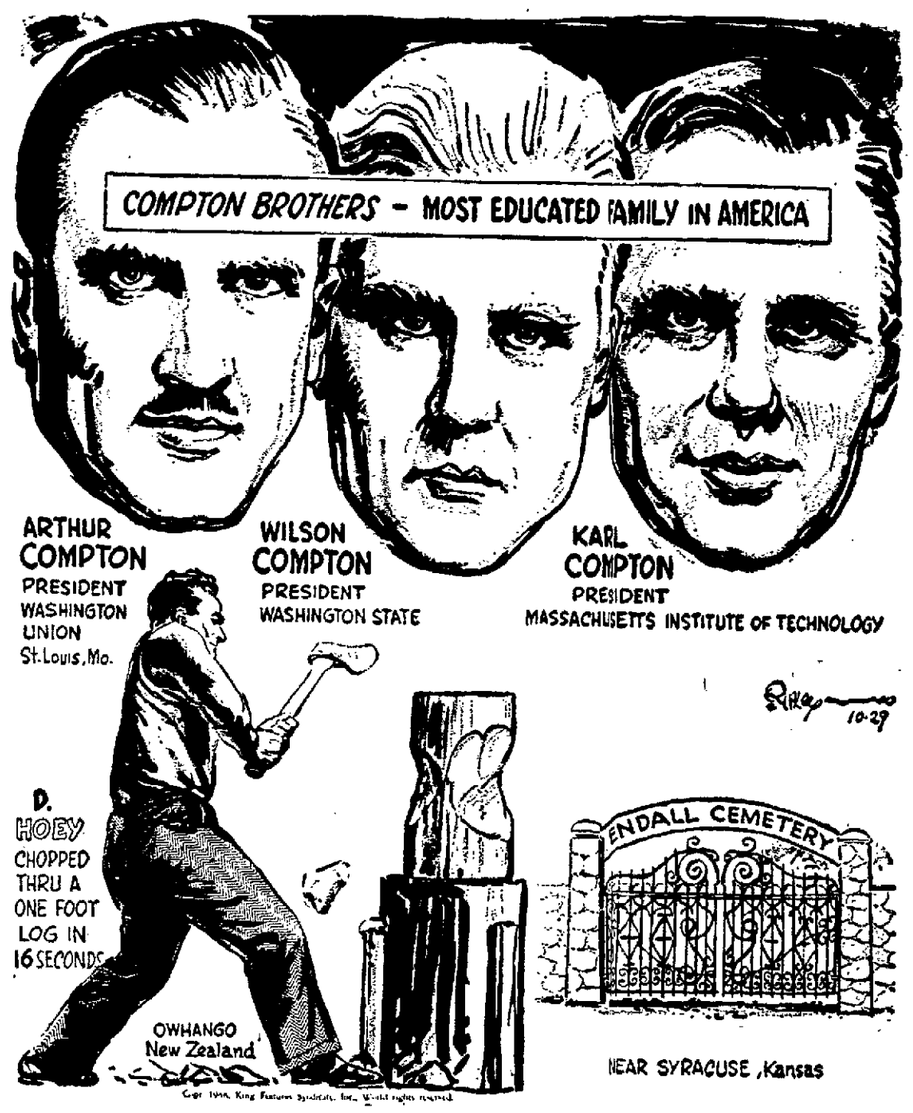
The board held a special meeting yesterday to discuss the case, which has aroused wide discussion in Ashland county. A member of the board said after the meeting that a formal application may be filed today.

The youths, 11, 13 and 15 years old, are being held in the detention room of the Salvation Army here to give an opportunity for an application for a new trial, should anyone decide to take such a step, according to Probate S. G. Boffenmeyer who heard the case.

But, he said, in spite of verbal and published protests by various Ashland groups and individuals over the sentencing of the three, no one has made an attempt to take over custody of the boys or filed motion for a new trial.

If such an application is made, the case would be reviewed before the state bureau of juvenile research, probate court authorities said.

The youths were sentenced to terms in the industrial school after they admitted setting the $15,000 fire which destroyed the barn at the home last week. They said they had set the fire in retaliation for being sent to bed supperless the night before the conflagation.



3 JUDGES HEAR ATTACK CASE

(Reprinted From Yesterday's Late Edition.)

Ellsworth Moyer, 32, of Galion, went on trial Monday in Richland county common pleas court on a charge of rape of a 13-year-old Jefferson township girl.

The case is being heard by three judges appointed by the supreme justice of Ohio after Moyer, through his attorneys, waived trial by jury and asked that his case be heard by three judges instead.

Hearing the case are Judge E. H. Savord of Erie county, Judge Meade C. Robinson of Logan county, and Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch of Richland county.

Taking the stand soon after the trial opened today, the 13-year-old girl was questioned by the prosecution and defense attorneys.

Five other witnesses, three for the prosecution and two for the defense, were expected to be called before the trial closes, possibly late today.

Moyer is accused of attacking the girl in a berry patch near her home last Aug. 17.

The defendant is married and the father of several children.

Attorneys for the defense are George W. Biddle, Mansfield, and George W. Coble of Galion. Prosecutor Theodore Lutz and Claude F. Ewing represent the state.

HERBERT RAPS POOR CARE OF ROAD SYSTEM

Labor, New Deal Highlight Campaign Oratory in Senatorial Race.

(By Associated Press)

The Democratic administration's program for the mentally ill and its handling of state highways dominated gubernatorial campaign oratory last night while labor and the New Deal highlighted speeches in the senatorial race as candidates pressed into the stretch before next Tuesday's election.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche defended his administration's handling of mental patients in state institutions in a round of speeches at Akron last night. Of Thomas J. Herbert, his Republican opponent, he said:

"Plainly if he were elected he would send the state back to the days of dungeons and lead-pipe, rubber-hose jailers."

Claims Progress.

Asserting advances in caring for the mentally ill were made over great obstruction, Lausche claimed "the greatest progress in Ohio in the last two decades was that of the last two years."

The governor said Herbert erred in criticizing the administrations increase in the number of employes at the mental hospital division of the welfare department.

"The increase was reasonable and necessary," Lausche continued.

John W. Bricker, the Republican choice for the senate seat of James W. Huffman, Democrat, told a Norwood, O., rally the Truman administration sought to "pit labor and business against each other for its own political advantage."

Bricker said the New Deal's "close alliance with certain radical labor leaders within the Political Action committee has led to unjust administration of the labor laws and a total disregard of workable wage-price policies in industry."

The former governor pledged his party to establishment of a "fair but stern policy of dealing with unreasonable, irresponsible and alien-inspired strikes."

Huffman described Bricker as a "late reactionary" who masquerades as an "early New Dealer."

Speaking at a New Philadelphia Democratic rally, Huffman recalled that Bricker termed himself a "middle of the roader" during a Cleveland appearance.

The incumbent said that while attacking the New Deal, Bricker simultaneously seeks the liberal vote by claiming "to have originated much New Deal legislation when he was attorney general of the state.

"If this were true, as he recently declared in Cleveland, then we would have to label him an early New Dealer and a late reactionary."

Herbert in a radio speech expressed concern "at the failure of the present administration to properly maintain highways."

"I favor the modernizing of our arterial routes between large centers of population," the Republican gubernatorial candidate continued.

"The agricultural importance of Ohio and the local use in its cities of farm products indicates a need for a sound program of local, farm to market, low cost road improvements."

AIR RESCUE FLIGHT HAS TRAGIC ENDING

YOKOHAMA —(INS)— The mercy flight of a Catalina flying boat ended in tragedy today when the plane sank 1,800 miles off Japan.

Radio reports to the navy's air-sea rescue unit at Yokohama said a critically ill man from the Seattle-bound transport Marine Serpent was drowned when the flying boat sank. The seven crew members of the plane were rescued and were being brought back to Yokohama by an American destroyer.

The flying boat was flown to the Marine Serpent in response to a call for medical assistance and had taken aboard the injured man when heavy seas upset the craft on an attempted takeoff.

PILES ARE NEVER "MILD"

DANGER IN NEGLECT

Although they may seem a "mild" ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formations without tendency to heal themselves, instead, they are likely, if neglected, to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting predisposing to or aggravating other ailments, such as: indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in the back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its run-down tired feeling, and general nervous irritability.

Removal of piles is the only permanent relief — written guarantee. My method produces little or no discomfort, does not require the use of knife or drugs, and seldom is the patient required to lose any time from work or other duties.

City's Community Fund Drive Goes Over Quota by $1,808

"I am sure that all Mansfielders are proud of the fact that the city can be included among those progressive cities which tangibly show their community spirit by completely supporting their Community Fund drives.

"The balanced performance of the Fund workers in this campaign is especially commendable. All 10 of the so-called uptown divisions exceeded their individual quotas and the uptown groups as a whole did an outstanding job in raising $49,-163, which represents aproximately 65 per cent over their quota.

"The industrial division, although beset with a solitation problem in one of the larger plants, fell 21½ per cent below the quota while contributing a noteworthy $49,109 toward the goal.

"I personally feel that this first peacetime campaign in five years was a test of the citizens of Mansfield, giver and Fund worker alike. They have both come through with a job well done."

Predicts $97,000.

Slabaugh predicted that the campaign total would reach $97,-000 by the time all subscriptions are in, possibly by the end of the week.

Few of the uptown division units failed to reach their quotas. Each division in the group, however, exceeded its individual goal.

George W. Stephens, chairman of the special gifts division, reported approximately $10,000 in receipts during the drive.

Stephens, president of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, said today that while his company had not yet reached its quota, he was quite confident that the goal will be reached by the end of the week.

Campaign officers today gave credit to the efforts of Donald G Ogden and Howard Richards, co-chairmen of the industrial division whose quota of $63,000 was not attained largely because of the lack of cooperation by hourly-rate workers in one of the city's largest plants. Most industrial units in the drive either met or exceeded their goals.

Team captains in the uptown divisions who topped their goals last night were: Construction—H. D. Osmond; Food—Russell Gimbel, Peter DiSanze, John Hergatt, B. B. Boals and Jerry King; Public Services — C. H. Bollman; Women's division — Mrs. W. E. Renwick, Mrs. W. E. Slabaugh and Mrs. Robert Shaffer.

Standings of the other divisions at the close of the campaign last night were:

Auto—$2,480; Construction—$4,843; Education—$2,110, Financial, $5,008; Food—$5,957; Professions—$4,894; Public Employes—$1,414; Public Services — $4,507; Retail—$7,926; Women's—$7,627.

LAUSCHE DUE HERE THURSDAY

The Republican executive committee is to meet in the probate court rooms at 7:30 tonight to consider endorsement of the levies and the bond issue. The committee is also to "take stock" of the campaign so far.

At Shelby last night McGregor declared that a Republican congress should be elected Nov. 5 in order to "restore a constitutional government to the people."

'GOP For Labor'.

McGregor told some 200 persons at the Shelby high school auditorium that "Republicans are for labor and have more to offer than the New Deal policy."

"I believe every worker has the right to strike, but he also has the right to work if he wants to. The New Deal policy has always been to drive wedges between labor, instead of getting cooperation I believe that labor should clean house and get rid of its radicals."

The congressman, predicting that the sugar shortage will last into 1947, declared that 343 per cent more refined sugar is being exported now than before the war "when there was no shortage."

Also appearing before the Shelby audience were John L Catlett, candidate for county representative to the state legislature, and Cyrus L. Shoup, county commissioner running for reelection.

County Prosecutor Theodore Lutz presided and the Shelby American Legion band provided music.

STALIN GIVES 2ND INTERVIEW

felt "the instigators of a new war, in the first place Churchill and others of like mind in Britain and the U.S.A.", constituted "the worst threat to world peace" now.

"If such a threat should arise," Baillie asked, "what would be the best steps to be taken by the nations of the world to avoid a new war?"

"The instigators of a new war," said Stalin, "are to be exposed and curbed."

His declaration that Russian troops in eastern Europe numbered 60 divisions constituted an answer to Churchill's suggestion, in the form of a question before the house of commons last week, that the Soviet Union had 200 divisions there, on full war strength.

"In the west," Stalin said, "that is, in Germany, Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria, Romania, and Poland, the Soviet Union has at present in all 60 divisions (infantry and tank together). Most of them are not full staffed. There are no Soviet troops in Yugoslavia. In two months, when the decree of the presidium of the supreme Soviet on Oct 22 this year on demobilization of the last contingent is put into effect, 40 Soviet divisions will remain in the above-mentioned countries."

He gave a flat "no" answer to an inquiry as to whether Russia had yet developed an atom bomb or any similar weapon and repeated his Sept. 24 appraisal that the atom bomb "cannot decide the outcome of war." Nevertheless, he said he felt that "strict international control" of atomic power was necessary.

The order is scheduled to be issued about Friday, although an OPA official said it might be delayed slightly.

The list will decontrol hundreds of items not important in the cost of living. It is not expected to include items still in short supply which are bought in volume by low-income families An OPA informant said controls probably will remain on such commodities with a retail sales value of $100,000,000 a year.

OFFICIALS DISPUTE OVER USE OF PLANT

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A table thumping dispute between two government agencies over whether a $170,947,000 war plant should be put to work turning out homes or cars landed in Attorney General Tom Clark's lap today.

At stake is whether the huge Dodge-Chrysler corporation plant at Chicago, one of the largest built during the war, will go to the Tucker corporation for production of a new-type automobile, or to the Lustron corporation for the manufacture of prefabricated housing.

The National Housing administration yesterday invoked its own war powers as well as the veterans' emergency housing act to "direct" that the plant be leased or sold to Lustron. The War Assets administration, which previously had rejected less formal demands from NHA on the ground that a lease had already been made with the Tucker corporation, checked the matter up to the justice department.

LEVIES INCREASE

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Ohio school districts are voting on more school levy proposals than last year, according to Dr. W. R. Flesher, head of the survey division of Ohio State university's bureau of educational research. Number of levies being voted on totals 607, as compared with last year's 369.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1946

An ounce of prevention may still be worth a pound of cure—but nobody seems to think of using it in time.

News item says: "In Russia, sports fans threaten to kill an umpire"—so give 'em time, they seem to be getting a better understanding of "democracy."

Meat dealers report that it is their wealthier patrons who are most inclined to skimp on their meat purchases because of high prices—they take into account that one dollar is a year's interest, at one percent, on $100."

Community Fund Goal Again Topped

OF COURSE the goal of $94,067 was reached in Mansfield's Community Fund campaign—the only regrettable feature being that the drive had to be extended a few days in order to bridge the gap caused by failure of one unit in the industrial division to meet its proportionate share of that group's quota.

Mansfielders in general have become so thoroughly "sold" to the Community Fund method of financing essential community agencies that their full co-operation is confidently anticipated each year—thus assuring continuance of this plan rather than a return to the earlier idea of separate solicitations by each agency.

The number of individual contributors has increased year after year, not only because of population gains but also because a larger percentage of residents recognized an obligation to share in maintaining activities designed for community betterment.

To carry through such a fund-raising campaign as has just been completed, it is necessary that many volunteers give freely of their time and effort in organizing and directing the work, as well as in personal solicitation, which mingles pleasant contacts with at least a few disagreeable incidents, but all of which provides opportunity for interesting study of "human nature."

As Mansfield increases in size it will experience a growing need for greater activity by various agencies which require public financial support, which makes it advisable that the work of these agencies be kept constantly in mind, so that everyone may gain understanding of the importance of each of them—and the fairness of asking that all residents of the community share in contributing to their upkeep.

Get Acquainted With the Ballots

WITH ELECTION DAY just a week ahead, Mansfield and Richland county are reflecting the surprising amount of public attention being given to what is called "politics," but what, in reality, is the most important phase of self-government—the choice of persons who will be delegated to represent the people of counties, states and nation in the operation of public business.

In Ohio voters will decide whether the present Democratic governor is to continue in office or be succeeded by a Republican. The same situation exists in the matter of United States senator, a Republican contending for the seat of a Democratic incumbent.

It is these two races that are attracting most public interest, but there are a number of contests for what are called "minor" state offices but which are really highly important in the handling of state business.

Also to be chosen is a representative in congress from the Seventeenth district, of which Richland county is a part, with a Democrat seeking to defeat the present Republican congressman.

Only Richland county contests are for representative in the state legislature, and one county commissioner, the present county auditor being unopposed for re-election, as is also the state senator in this district.

As a third party on the largest ballot which voters will receive next Tuesday there is what is called a "Social Labor Ticket," which presents candidates for only three offices—governor, lieutenant governor and U. S. senator.

A separate judicial ballot provides for election of one judge of the state supreme court and a court of appeals judge.

Two small ballots which Mansfield voters will receive present the proposed tax levies—one the three-mill levy for school purposes and the other the two-tenths of a mill levy for financing supervised recreation in this city.

Indications now are that the total of next Tuesday's vote throughout the nation will rival that of a presidential election, and it is anticipated that the Mansfield and Richland county total will reflect that evidence of widespread interest.

Annual Tribute To Girl Scouts

GIRL SCOUTS appearing in uniform throughout the city remind Mansfielders that this is the week given over to honoring Girl Scouts and their work. Observance extends through November 3. It will be climaxed on that date by a special service at St. Luke's Lutheran church. Rev. Herbert S. Garnes will speak. The Girl Scout choir will sing and Boy Scouts will be guests at the service.

Throughout the week each troop in Mansfield is planning its own observance.

Value of scouting to young girls is fairly well recognized in this community. Excellent programs are conducted both summer and winter. The caliber of leaders in the movement has been high. And here is a point . . .

For women who really wish to contribute to the betterment of youth, for those who want to do something constructive about preventing juvenile delinquency instead of just talking about it, there can scarcely be a more satisfactory method than becoming a Girl Scout leader.

Girl Scouting trains community leaders, but leaders are needed in the training, too. And it should not be forgotten that there is equal opportunity and equal reward for girls and their leaders alike in the outstanding Girl Scout movement.

Big business men are not necessarily monopolists. A plea for an international trade freed from monopoly shackles has just been made by Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National bank of New York City. Cartels may benefit a few, but in the long run they are disastrous, even to their temporary beneficiaries.

A Boston patrolman warned school children not to cross the street "without looking"—then he started across the street and was hit by a bus . . . probably to demonstrate the need for caution.

One columnist, after touring the states, comes out of Indiana with the impression that "the Hoosiers are just like other people"—which it is nice to know, they being such close neighbors.

Claude Callan has an idea: "You can pay all your taxes easily if you will only cut out unnecessary expenses, such as food and clothing."

WELL, THAT EXPLAINS IT

Pearson Advises Checking Record Of GOP Congressional Aspirants

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—It is interesting to look over the field of candidates the Republicans have rushed in to run for congress now that they expect a landslide. Fortunately for them but unfortunately for the country some of the voters are not taking the trouble to dig into their records.

Take, for instance, the record of Fred W. Danner, Republican candidate to congress in Akron, Ohio. The average votes does not have the time and inclination to examine documents in the recorder's office in Summit county, Ohio, but if he did some interesting things would develop.

These records show that Mr. Danner, who now seeks to be paid by the federal government, for three years did not even bother to pay his taxes to the federal government.

In fact, he did not bother to pay up his back taxes until June 27 of this year—just a few weeks after he was nominated on the Republican ticket. Only at that very late date he finally straightened out his tax record with Uncle Sam.

Meanwhile on Sept. 11, 1939, the collector of internal revenue, being unable to collect $273.71 of back taxes, filed a lien against Danner's property. Then, as further federal taxes remained unpaid, the collector of internal revenue filed seven other tax liens totalling $3,280.22. These income tax for 1940, social security taxes for part of 1939, and capital stock tax for 1940.

Though Mr. Danner was unwilling or unable to pay his taxes to the government which he wants to represent in Washington, last spring—when he decided to run for congress—he seemed to have plenty of money. At that time he spent a total of $14,553 on his primary campaign, polling a total of 14,416 votes, or one vote for every dollar spent. He is now reported to be spending even more.

Bilbo's Little Game.

This column has already exposed part of Senator Bilbo's little game of securing contributions and/or "gifts" from Mississippi war contractors. However, there is more to come. Here is another chapter.

Previously it was revealed that Senator Bilbo received a present of an 8-acre lake, an island on the lake, a dream house built on the island, furniture to put in the house and a $1,912 Cadillac—all from two war contractors who got army jobs through the help of the Mississippi senator. It was also revealed that two contractors gave Bilbo $25,000 which he later claimed was a contribution to the senatorial campaign of Wall Doxey—though the latter said he never spent anywhere near that much.

However, on top of all this, B. L. Knost of the Morrissy-Knost Construction company, gave Bilbo $5,000 on June 12, 1941. Later, on Sept. 7, 1942, Knost gave Bilbo's secretary, Edward F. Terry, $3,750.

Morrissy and Knost had not only helped construct Keesler Field at Biloxi, and Key Field at Meridian in 1941, but had received $3,527,268.39 in war contracts in 1943.

The two "presents" they gave Bilbo were charged on the company's books in equal amounts to the personal accounts of the two partners.

When questioned about them by government inspectors, Morrissy refused to comment. Knost stated that they were for the Wall Doxey senatorial campaign.

However, Senator Doxey and his campaign associates all said that no such money had been spent by them.

Richard C. Wooton, attorney and certified public accountant who prepared Bilbo's income-tax return, said that the $8,750 was spent in the Doxey campaign, but the senator had no records to substantiate this statement. Nor did he have any substantiation of his statement that the previously noted $25,000 was spent in the Doxey campaign.

Nice pickings, Senator, if you can get away with it!

Spanish War Surplus.

As if there weren't enough headaches in disposing of surplus goods from this war, the War Assets Administration recently had to unload some ancient horse-drawn ambulances used in the Spanish-American war.

The problem finally was solved by removing the wheels and painting the bodies in delicate pastel tints.

Presto—the relics were converted into gay cabanas and bathing shelters for seashore resorts. They sold like hotcakes.

American ingenuity also is finding practical applications for other surplus war items, including ammunition cartons.

Some young ladies would be surprised to learn that the box now containing flowers from an admirer once contained bullets. Florists are buying "ammo" cartons by the hundreds.

Air-raid helmets make laying nests for hens, while WAA press agents boast that metal army helmets have become drinking troughs for hogs, though, as hog-raisers ourselves, we very much doubt that one.

Farmer's Diary: "Picking Apples."

IT IS wonderful how a definite purpose for the day adds zest and true enjoyment to common labor. On Saturday the four boys and I loaded sacks and baskets on the trailer and with the tractor chugging steadily ahead, we drove five miles to an untended orchard, where I had seen apples going to waste, and purchased them for cider.

The day was filled with sunshine, and only when riding in the shade of a bank or clump of trees did we feel the quiet autumn chill so common in late October.

The oldest boy was on the driver's seat, the other three and I sat on a soft pile of bags. We left the highway and took a little-used private road—a narrow rustic drive that could terminate only in a woodland.

To the west a corn field stood, with heavy rows of shocks, and far at the northern end a score of heaps of yellow corn upon the moist uneven soil. A team and wagon stood against a rise, and a weather-beaten, middle-aged man was picking up the heaps of ears, and throwing them upon the wagon.

Farther up the hollow, the road became drifted with red and yellow leaves. Tall maples were shedding scarlet autumn robes, poplars were yellow, and the gums aflame. A wave of purple showed on the broad leaved oaken hedge that formed the border of the woods.

Up through a forest trail that seemed untouched by any passers-by we climbed, until we reached the abandoned orchard of pears and temptingly colored apples. Many of the pears had fallen, but the apples still clung tight to their stems, in spite of frost and autumn gales.

We let the tractor stand, and the young boys took to the trees, heavy laden with water sprouts, and proceeded to shake the apples. It was sheer joy for a boy to climb high up on a burdened branch and suddenly shake it with all his strength. How those apples thudded upon the ground—some bounding and bouncing in the grass. "Three gallons of cider to a bushel," we calculated, "17 bushels to fill a 50-gallon barrel." Unhurriedly, we began to fill our sacks.

When all of us were tired and cramped from long stooping, we took time out for an improvised game. We set up an old tree trunk with a large round knot hole in it and gathered runty, rotten apples to throw at the target. With every contact against the hard-shelled trunk, pieces of apple flew and the amber juice spattered in starlike points against the uneven, barkless surface. The play was far more strenuous than the work but after it, we could fill the remainder of the sacks.

Dusk was chilling the eastern hillside when we drove home, each tired boy munching a juicy pear or apple as we jogged along.

Assignment: America

—By KENNETH L. DIXON

Read All About It! Honest Man Found!

WASHINGTON—This, as everyone knows, is the city of grifters and grafters, of feeders at the public trough, of federal phonies who "never did an honest day's work in their lives," of government guys and gals who "couldn't be elected dog-catcher" but who fasten themselves to the taxpayers' bloodstream to feed for life.

So probably it's a waste of time to point out that there are several few exceptions to the rule. But let me tell you about one:

Up to a point, his has been the kind of an American legend we love to talk about. That is to say, he was born a poor boy in the midwest. He worked himself through high school and college, coming out of the latter as valedictorian.

He had to work nights to put himself through law school, but he did. Because of his willingness to work anywhere from 12 to 20 hours daily, and his obvious clear-headed intelligence, he became a definite community success within a couple or three years.

In fact, he became such a success that the leading law firm in the comparatively large city in which he lived had to take him in as a partner. They couldn't afford to be losing cases to him so constantly.

His income mushroomed. He had reached $50,000 annual salary, with perhaps an average of $25,000 more yearly for special cases, when he was asked to run for public office in that city. At the time, he was in his early thirties.

Because he believed citizens should take an interest in their government and, when necessary, take part in it, he agreed to run for the office—which paid $5,000 annually and meant he had to drop all his private sources of income.

He was elected. He served four years, and could easily have been elected for another four except for a law which limited that office to one term.

With a sigh of relief audible for miles, he returned to private life and business—and an income of about $100,000 annually.

Then, a few months later, President Truman called on him to come to Washington and take over a very ticklish job: It was not the first time he had been tagged for a federal post, but always before he had turned them down. This time he couldn't, for the president put it on a basis of patriotic duty (they had met before—even though this man does not come from Missouri!) and besides, he believed the job needed being done.

He came here—for a salary of $12,000 annually—and threw himself into the job with the same energy and ability which had made him a terrific success in private practice. He believed in what he was doing and, since it affected millions of people across the country, he worked and fought hard to do it well.

The $12,000 salary can't begin to pay for his expenses both here and at home. In addition to the money he is losing professionally (his old firm would take him back at a flat $75,000 and another firm has offered him $125,000 plus expenses and special fees), it's actually costing him money from his savings to continue at his job here.

Why then is he doing it?

Well, for one thing, he promised the president to see it through. For another, he still believes what he's doing needs being done.

Right now, he's in the midst of a terrific fight. The same type of people who hired him as a lawyer before, and will hire him again, are battling him every inch of the way. They represent the interests who want his particular job and department eliminated.

They are calling him all the names in the book—federal phony, government grafter, Communist, long-haired dreamer, politician and theorist who "couldn't be elected dog-catcher or couldn't make an honest dime in private practice . . ."

All of this appears in the newspapers, mind you.

Fortunately, he has a sense of humor. He laughs it off, and has enough self-confidence to believe that, when this fight is finished and his job it done, he still can make good money as a lawyer back home—where he'd rather be right now.

Perhaps that same self-confidence is why he doesn't want to be named in this story. He doesn't want to be pictured as a martyr. And because I respect him for that, I agreed not to name him . . . but you'd know him if I did.

And I just wanted to mention that there are other men like that in Washington, too.

Emotional Appeals Injected Into Campaign

WASHINGTON — A mystery to anyone who travels about the country observing the congressional campaigns is why the Democrats failed to dramatize the basic foreign policy issue of continued effective international co-operation.

On the other hand, many Republicans—on a tip-off from National Chairman Carroll Reece—have distorted a phase of foreign policy into what has become perhaps the single most important issue in the election, because it is an emotional one.

The strategy is to bring up Russia as a fearsome prospect, delicately of course, and to go on from there to stress Communism and then to charge the Democratic party with fostering it here.

Mr. Reece called the tune some weeks back, and all across the country the visiting political reporter finds its echo. It is skillful and clever and it works with many people, especially with times good, and money in the pocket.

This emotional appeal to fear and prejudice, along with OPA, strikes, and the obvious confusion with which the Truman administion has operated in the domestic field in recent months, has tended to obscure a basic, long-time foreign policy issue that relates directly to congress. And it is a congress that is being voted for Nov. 5.

This can be explained by pointing back to the fight in congress, some months ago, over measures to back up and make real our pledge of international co-operation.

Perhaps the outstanding achievement of the Truman administration thus far was the success in putting through those measures. For it was not an easy job, as those who watched it first-hand can testify.

There was, first, the United Nations, and later the various implementing measures. These included the international bank and monetary fund to help rehabilitate Europe and Asia: the extension of our reciprocal tariff program to revive and promote trade; the British loan; the international food and agriculture organization; appropriations for UNRRA; provision for our contingent of military forces for the international police force.

While the United Nations was ratified easily, due to the excellent spade-work of President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull in enlisting Republican help, some of the others were won only after hard battles, with still Republican opposition. This does not always show so much in the final votes, as in various attempts beforehand to cripple one or other of these projects, with which only those who covered proceedings closely are familiar.

These are all matters of record for the congressional campaign. It is well to remember those up for re-election who fought them, mostly Republicans, but some few Democrats. International cooperation is a continuing business. Similar and related matters must come before the next and succeeding congresses, as President Truman indicated in his address to the United Nations assembly.

We would be set back, or could lose much of what already has been accomplished, in the next few years if there is not real and sincere continued co-operation in congress.

Republicans give lip service to co-operation, loudly proclaiming their support of the Byrnes-Vandenberg policy as they call it, and then go a step further to accuse the administration of wanting to appease Russia, for which they find the Wallace incident handy. From then on they go into their spiel about how the Truman administration is riddled with Communism.

Politics is a strange business.

Immensity of Nation Dwarfs Petty Bickering

NEW YORK—The vast sweep of America is overpoweringly beautiful. You see that again and again when moving across the continent. Even the speed of the airplane cannot dwarf it. It is so much bigger than any of the jealous factions and the jealous little people who push and pull in the struggle for personal power.

The sharpness of line and sharpness of color of the American earth are indelible. Cities and towns, mountain and prairie and desert roll out like figures woven into a bright carpet.

The mood of Indian Summer is on the Middle West. Passing through Illinois and Iowa, the countryside looks rich and prosperous. The corn rows are down. The pumpkins lie in the quiet fields.

It is rich and prosperous. This is one of the strangest paradoxes of this strange year of our discontent.

The people have a prosperous look. On trains, in railway stations, in the fearfully crowded hotels, they wear bright clothes. The women look as though they had just come from the hairdressers. If the edge of the boom has been dulled, as some people are beginning to say, it is not yet obvious.

Motoring from Los Angeles to San Diego, California, once you leave the sprawling city behind, you get the breathtaking expense of the Pacific. And when a red sun drops down behind the rim of the west, the theatricality of it is hard to believe.

San Diego shines in bright, diamond-sharp light. It is one of the few cities where uniforms still predominate, since the navy has enormously expanded its installations. During the war San Diego's population nearly doubled. The soldiers and sailors who were stationed there during the war want to come back to live.

Journeying eastward, with a stop at Tucson, you rediscover the prodigality of our American inheritance. Arizona is another kind of drama. The light lends a magic to the commonest shapes and the sunset spills color bright as flame over the jagged mountains.

New Orleans is relaxed, easy. In late afternoon the city lies serenely in the crescent that the Mississippi forms on its slow course to the gulf. Lake Ponchartrain on the other side is a calm, flat sea. The haze over the city has a golden, dusky look, softening even the new, modern buildings in the downtown section.

The contrast with the great cosmopolis of New York could not be sharper. New York, the financial capital of the world, has now suddenly become the political capital also. This is an honor which the city is not altogether prepared to accept.

The United Nations is swallowed up, lost, in the city's roar. Inevitably the whole apparatus—the delegates, the secretariat—are scattered both as to their living quarters and their work. This makes it difficult to give any center or focus to the organization.

The U. N. still appears in the role of a timid refugee, hoping for kindly treatment but not really sure of being accepted.

The complexities and difficulties of living in the midst of booming, overcrowded New York are very great. They make for constant irritation and frustration.

With all of America to choose from, surely the struggling new organization can find a permanent home more nearly adapted to its needs. San Francisco, one of the most magnificent cities in the world, is eager to have the United Nations settle there. The issue should not be finally closed. The roar of the cosmopolis, the new Babylon, is not conducive to concentration and earnest effort.

And suppose a feller gets some wood, what is he going to do for nails, honestly mixed cement, paint that won't wash off with the first April shower and doors that fit the casements?
